DETROIT, Mich. -- A toddler in Detroit really knows how make some noise to get noticed.

The 2-year old can often be found playing his father's drums. Dad says little Julian Pavone first picked up the sticks at three-months and has already made a CD.

"He just actually started saying the word 'drum' just in the last week,' the toddler's mother said. "And before that, he would twirl his tongue so he doesn't say momma yet, but he says 'drum.'

If he looks familiar to you, a few weeks ago, Julian performed a two-minute set in front of a packed house at the "Q" during a Cavaliers game.
