Energy Tips-Fact Sheet

Some ways to hold down energy bills:

- Reduce air leaks by installing weather stripping on windows and doors.
- Caulk around small openings including pipes, vents, heating ducts and electric outlets to reduce air leaks.
- Lower the thermostat to between 65 and 70 degrees, and to 58 degrees when away from home for more than two hours.
- Have the your furnace serviced and clean furnace filters once a month during the heating season.
- Close heating vents in unused rooms.
- Close dampers when fireplace is not in use.
- Set water heater thermostat at 120 degrees.
- Install flow-restricted showerheads and faucets; take short showers, instead of baths.
- Run washing machines and clothes dryers with a full load.
- Make sure attic has adequate insulation.
- Replace outdate appliances and heating systems with high-efficiency models.
- Install double-pane thermal windows.
- Use compact fluorescent light bulbs.
- Turn off computer monitors when not in use. (Sources: The Energy Department; the American Gas Association and the Alliance to Save Energy)

Wolf Spiders

- Wolf Spiders Story
- Non-chemical methods to control spiders: (Courtesy of UNL Cooperative Extension)

-- Keep the premises free of unneeded, unwanted items such as undisturbed clothing, papers and other litter. Indoor habitat modification that creates a barrier to the movement of spiders into buildings is also a key tactic to effective spider control.

-- Keep the corners and crawl spaces of buildings free of spider webs. Dust these areas or use a vacuum to remove existing webs. Vacuuming removes active spider webs, adult spiders and spider egg sacs. Living spiders will desiccate quickly in the vacuum bag, but depending on the design of the vacuum, it may be useful to empty the bag immediately after use in order to prevent the spiders' escape.

-- Remove litter such as newspaper and wood from interior and sides of buildings.

-- Caulk and repair screens and fill cracks and crevices around windows, doors and foundations with materials such as expanding polyurethane foam.

-- Inspect common areas for holes and gaps, including entry holes for plumbing and electrical lines and window and door casings. Fill these holes.
