Little Drummer Boy Becomes Mini Businessman

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (Wireless Flash - FlashNews) – Donald Trump has nothing on one pint-sized business mogul.

Four-year-old Julian Pavone is known as the “World’s Youngest Drummer,” and now the mini music prodigy has officially become the world’s youngest inventor.

Julian just patented a stain cover-up he created called “Abracadabra,” which can be used to cover clothing stains and touch up musical instruments.

According to the tiny tot, “Being an inventor is cool.”

His dad, Bernadino Pavone, says Julian is always drumming up creative ways to improve things, like when he suggested “putting shakers in his drum sticks to hear his music better.”

Bernadino says Julian is highly involved in the process of his inventions, often attending business meetings with adults and calling the shots.

Dad explains, “He’s great at coming up with names and taglines for things. If he doesn’t like something, we change it. He’s the boss!”

Bernadino jokes that Julian is like a tiny businessman who needs a nap between meetings and says he’s even been known to hop on the phone with lawyers to discuss patents.
