“Liggett...

WORLD'S YOUNGEST DRUMMER
RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

I graduated from Liggett in 1994. Since then, I have become a wife, physician and mother of two. Looking back on my educational journey, I realize that the lessons learned at Liggett, both inside and outside the classroom, were the most important to me. In fact, I often tell others that my education at Liggett is the best education I ever received.

Because of this, my 3-year old son, Julian, is now also attending Liggett. This would seem to be a natural decision, except for the fact that our family lives in Bloomfield Hills, just a few miles from other prestigious - and what others might consider comparable - private schools.

My son, Julian, has extraordinary musical talent and has been recognized as “The World’s Youngest Drummer.” His abilities are being nurtured and encouraged every day at University Liggett School. Knowing this, we gladly drive 45 minutes across town so that he can learn, grow and thrive in this incredible environment. I know what a Liggett education has done for me, and I am grateful to be able to provide the same opportunity to my son. The experiences and education Julian has already and will continue to receive are priceless and easily worth the financial investment. I would encourage every parent to make that kind of important investment in their child.

After all, the children are our future and that future is being formed today, at Liggett.
