

Owning real estate in the Bahamas is becoming a hedge against the declining U.S. economy. As property values drop in the US and in other Caribbean destinations, real estate in the Bahamas has been insulated from this economic free fall. The Paradise Is Mine company offers real estate investors and people seeking oceanfront property a significant value compared to the United States or other Caribbean locales. _

Several states are considering raising additional tax revenues by charging us a fee based on the number of miles we drive. In order to monitor our comings and goings, they would install GPS chips, which we’d no doubt have to pay for, in our various vehicles. The Big Brother aspect aside, we are already being taxed on mileage at the gas pump. _
